Regional Writing In Your Library

Borrow a locally produced book here.

Literature On Your Doorstep is bringing together your local libraries and regional publishers to get more copies of regional books onto library shelves, and to bring some of those writers into the library itself to meet readers.

Writing West Midlands and the West Midlands Readers' Network are working with six West Midlands publishers to bring the best of regional writing and publishing to libraries near you.

The West Midlands region is full of vibrant writing and interested readers.

At the heart of this writing/reading relationship are the publishers who make this work available to us, and the libraries that give us the space to discover it.

Literature On Your Doorstep is bringing together your local libraries and regional publishers to get more copies of regional books onto library shelves, and to bring some of those writers into the library itself to meet readers.

Look out for details of free literature events in libraries in 2012/13.
